

CloudDesk Refund Policy

Category: Billing & Legal | Effective: 2026-01-01

1. Overview

This policy describes when CloudDesk subscription charges are eligible for a refund. It applies to self-service Starter and Business plans. Enterprise agreements are governed by their individual contract terms.

2. Refund eligibility window

- New subscriptions: full refund if requested within 14 days of the initial charge and the workspace has fewer than 5 active users.
- Monthly renewals: refunds are not issued for monthly renewals once the new billing cycle has started. You may cancel to stop future charges.
- Annual plans: a prorated refund of unused full months is available within 30 days of the annual charge.

3. Non-refundable items

- Charges older than the eligibility windows above.
- Usage-based add-ons that have already been consumed.
- Taxes already remitted to tax authorities.

4. How to request a refund

Refund requests are reviewed individually by a human billing specialist and are not processed automatically. A Workspace Owner or Billing Admin must submit the request from Settings → Billing → Request Refund, or by contacting billing support with the invoice number. Approved refunds are returned to the original payment method within 5–10 business days.

5. Disputes and chargebacks

If you believe you were charged in error, contact billing support before initiating a chargeback with your bank. Chargebacks filed without prior contact may result in the workspace being suspended pending resolution. All disputes are handled by a human specialist.
